Description

Asilah Museum and Design School is designed as a series of buildings configured around an existing monument dedicated to the King of Morocco, in an Area of Outstanding National Importance. The buildings are cut into the landscape to minimise any impact on the monument and to help reduce the impact of the climate on the structures.

The Museum and Design School are to become an integral part of the International Art Festival held annually in Asilah by creating a centre of History and Design. The scheme is continuing to grow with the addition of an outdoor theatre which combined with the Museum and Design School will form an International Centre for the Creative Arts.
